you guys are overly broad with this trans shit girls are hot. everybody would want to look like them obviously like, who WOULDNT want to have thick long hair, soft skin, be petite, have greater freedom of personal expression, AND be naturally desired in pretty much every social setting? this feels so obvious and like some of you will say '>he doesnt know' and 'anon take your pills', but im being completely serious. its practically a meme that most guys would prefer to be cute women like, sure, i can accept that gender dysphoria exists. i can accept that some of you were born with a mental map of what your body SHOULD look like, and reality differs, and you undertake medical transition to fix that. what i disagree with is that dysphoria manifests in as benign of a way as 'oh i prefer to be a girl', because that applies to pretty much every single male like idgi, feels like im schizophrenic when i see online tranners talking about their dysphoria

t. AMAB trying to understand trannys

That's an extremely small percent of men. Most men are extremely disillusioned with the pretenses of masculinity and just desire to have the innate value that femininity can provide and like obviously most wont admit this bc its cringe to admit, but it feels so obvious from the outside

Men can be sexy, but the bar is higher, and their entire existence is both a meme and a massive blow to their personal expression and agency. The only thing I can think to do is to be very nice to the ones who try.

whatever 'distress' i have over being a male, it's purely from a result of being unable to live up to the standards of male-ness. it has nothing to do with being a male itself

Of course you want to be a woman, but you want to be a hot big tits bimbo you don't want all the actual woman stuff. You're a woman now, hot! Until you realize when trying to bond with men but they just think you're a creepy dyke because you still sound and act like a straight man but you have a tiny weak form but maybe they can get a good one time sex out of you they guess. And then you can't have male friendships, you can have only female friendships but wait, women are horrible.

You have to act exactly how they want you to and even when they do they're shit talking you constantly behind your back and think you have no worth as a person. You throw up and get dizzy every month for a full week but everyone just says to deal with it or is uncomfortable when you mention it. You don't have a penis so nothing is as sexy as it was when you were a man, you don't just look at a pair of tits and rub one out now even if you try to it's not the same.

You can't make friendships with men or women, you can't date men because most of them expect too much of you just like how women did when you were a man, but this time you're expected to lay down and take things which just hurt. You can't date women because if you thought women friendships were bad, lesbians are even worse. And you'll age out of any attraction value you had by 40 at LEAST so all that female advantage is gone by then.

sort of agree

for me, it's about wanting to present as non-threatening. i want people to feel comfortable approaching me, calm, as if i was mom material.

you can't really do that while having a male body. male bodies are seen as inherently threatening.

i want to tear my skin off my body.

i guess at the end of the day, i could say it's not my fault, it's societies' fault that they see males as threatening, but then it sort of feels like i'm arguing against something so subconscious as to be arguing against the natural state of humanity itself.

theres a lot of weird psychoanalysis stuff here

i dont know of any women irl who actually experience any of this, they have rich friendships with both males and females, and usually have enough options to never settle for partners that dont meet their criteria

they legitimately wander through life in a near-constant 'winning' state, at least when it comes to anything social, and are far, far happier than any male i know

I can say, with complete confidence ,that adopting a life where you try to present yourself as a desirable female while being a male will just result in complete disaster. You can preen and doll yourself up, but ultimately the passage of time will lay waste to all those efforts. Imagine someone who was originally male trying to pose as a female when they reach the age of 40 or even 50.

Short-term attraction will not serve well in the long-term.

I'm a pragmatic person. I never would have transitioned if I wasn't able to pass in the first place. Having the testes removed only insured that I wouldn't lose what I already had. People who think meds or cosmetic surgeries are miracles are going to have a bad time. Aging into masculinity is a meme though, that doesn't happen. My skin isn't going to stop being soft. I'm not going to stop being pear shaped. The hair on my head isn't going anywhere.

I don't know you personally, so I can't comment on whether or not you "pass" as a "female", but I think it's an ignorant standpoint to go "Ageing into masculinity is a meme". It isn't a fucking meme. It's a natural cycle of life for males to age, and if you started out as a male and wanted to "transition" into a female, then you should consider the fact that as you age you'll start looking less and less as a female. I honestly can't imagine that, even if you were to pass as a close to 40 trans person, that it would still hold up as you reached your 50s and 60s.

That's not how any of that works. What you're describing occurs due to testosterone. The testes produce 95% of the body's testosterone. Those can be removed. If they are, none of that happens. How do we know? Extensive and ancient histories of eunuchs. They didn't take estrogen, and they still didn't age like men.

Even if we assume what you say is true, they still don't have any of the requisites that complement regular female anatomy.

A person can take all the estrogen pills and/or shots that they want, but there's fundamental proprieties attributed to a person's gender that they carry from birth. These proprieties also attribute to how they age. I stand by what I said before - a person who was originally male and decides to transition will only face complications in their appearance as they age.

>These proprieties also attribute to how they age

Again, not how that works. You should really stop making assumptions based on gut feelings. It doesn't serve you here, and it won't serve you anywhere else in life.

Why exactly am I wrong here? Quick internet search produced this article <https://www.venustreatments.com/en-gl/blog/the-differences-between-how-men-and-women-age/>

I'm sure there's other articles or essays to extrapolate from. That was just the first one I clicked when I typed "how do female and males age". It's not assumptions, it's filtering through various opinions to determine facts.

Because with the testes removed, you cease being an ordinary man to which these types of articles apply. Hormones tell the body what to do, or what not to do.

Only coping trannies trying to find ways to absolve there feelings think like this.

Failed men filled with envy might too.

But they only fail as men due to being feminized in nature... prone to trooning anyway.

Ive literally never even considered it. Womens weakness and need to prevent conflict or lie to appease makes me sick.

Weakness disgusts me. If I could id be 18 feet tall like those giant warrior ants in the colony.

men do not know either. for most trauma from mistreatment when they expressed femininity scarred them for life. serious shit. stunted emotions. look how many trauma victims can feel intense unease when viewing nontrethening stimuli that they associate with traumatic event. you know what happens when guy supposedly cis takes estrogen with open mind? they end up enjoying it. seriously. look up Demastro reddit profile. as guy was cis but was dying from multiple sclerosis so she took hrt as last resort as estrogen is said to be helpful. she was resistant a bit at first still self id as man but grew too big breasts to jode so socially transitioned. ended up being way happier and says being girl is just better. it is real. sexually dimorphic bstc is involved in fear processing so ones with bigger androgenized bstc are least likely to go past trauma and explore themselves hence trans people having feminine bstc on average. there is overlap in bstc sized between men and women tho despite clear trend.

'emasculatation' is threatening purely because men know thats all they have, and do not believe in their capability to embody anything other than manhood so if they are emasculated, they truly think they have nothing to offer the world. which is true, emasculatation doesnt suddenly men they have the same status as women anyway im not projecting, issues like feeling touch-starved, ignored by the world, having to be a provider, lacking capacity for self expression, forced emotional numbness, and the like, are all things ive heard men say they hate is it a coincidence that those issues are uniquely male-related?

calling out 'toxic masculinity' is disliked because most men understand that their primary way to interact with the world, given their looks, IS masculinity. they know that if they try to interact with it in a feminine way without the looks to back it up, they'll be a pariah.

it is NOT because they actually enjoy masculinity, its just their only option

>>25047915

ur honestly retarded

> But they only fail as men due to being feminized in nature... prone to trooning anyway.

no, because neither i or these other men have grnder dysmorphia. a more apt term would be like gender envy

>>25048031

most men do think like this, i swear to god. literally have any moderately social girl explain their life to a man, and then ask them if theyd like to switch bodies. they would do it 99% of the time

sounds extremely powerful for your emotional needs to not have to be tied to specific people lol
